

In Spring 2020, Lead Artist Calcagno Cullen and Apprentice Artists James Bond and Candace Krois started a participatory public sculpture project entitled 'What We Need To Hear' in the Avondale neighborhood of Cincinnati. They created interactive boxes that asked residents to "Write words to positively motivate" their neighbors. They placed these hand crafted boxes, equipped with lollipops and cards for submissions, around the neighborhood at the Laundromat, Library, Rec Center, and elsewhere, and as a result they received over 75 responses. Four of these submissions were selected to become permanent, light-up sculptures at the Hirsch Recreation Center. Though we could not select all of them for the sculpture project, we wanted to share them in this zine. We found value in all of these communal words of affirmation and wisdom and hope you do too.

Persevere!

"Avondale is a community that isn't the most affluent, and perseverance is what will keep the residents strong through all the surrounding change."

Hope, stay strong.

"There is an overwhelming sense of hopelessness in this neighborhood from the people that can no longer afford to live in the gentrified area. They are being pushed out of the area they love and 'hope' is all they have."
